

For Immediate Release:
November 14, 2013

Contact: Scott Hughes
(334) 271-7955

ADEM Announces Community Training Event on Environmental Issues

The Alabama Department of Environmental Management (ADEM) has partnered with Auburn University, Alabama Cooperative Extension System, and the Auburn University Water Resources Center to provide an opportunity for local community members to receive training on how to obtain information related to environmental issues within their community. ADEM has made significant strides in making environmental information available via their website. The training event will highlight topics such as how to file an environmental complaint electronically and how to access information about environmental activities within local communities. Local citizens that are interested in environmental issues are invited to attend along with elected officials, students, faculty, and other guests.

WHAT: Training on Environmental Issues Within Local Communities

WHO: Alabama Department of Environmental Management
Auburn University, Alabama Cooperative Extension System
Auburn University Water Resources Center

WHEN: Thursday, November 21 from 6:00 p.m. --- 7:30 p.m.

WHERE: Mike Hubbard Center for Advanced Science Innovation and Commerce
559 DeVall Drive
Auburn University, Alabama 36849

